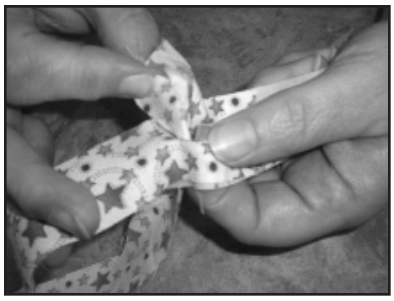
1 Overlap each end of two fabric strips approximately 1¼."

2 While holding fabric together, fold overlapping area in half.

3A Still holding fold together with one hand, use other hand to snip ¼" slit in fold at center of fabric.

3B When fold is opened, slit will measure ½."

4 Carefully open fold, still holding overlapping fabrics together. Using index finger from below, find your ½" slit. Take the loose end of fabric laying on top and thread the tail through slits of both fabrics, pushing tail up from bottom through top.



5 Still holding overlapping fabrics together with one hand, use other hand to pull through remaining length of top fabric strip.

6 As you approach the junction, a small loop will form. Carefully wiggle through short cut end of the original overlapping pieces. It will "pop" through the slit.

7 Pull on both fabric strips on either side of your new slit stitch junction.

8 Give a firm tug to finish joining the strips. Now grab another strip of fabric and overlap it on one end of your newly joined strips and repeat steps 1 - 8 until the fabric strips reach your desired length.
