A Note from Sheryll

All,

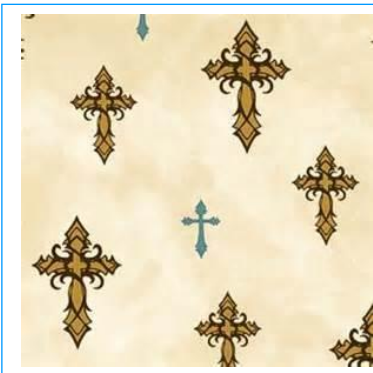

Sorry about being a little late this month....needless to say it has been quite a month so far. I had open heart surgery on August 31st and have been recovering ever since. I am feeling better but still get tired really easy. I will still be doing my stem cell transplant later, they are going to give me time to recover from the heart surgery! I just want to take a moment to make sure you know that heart attacks and women are a completely different thing. I had had at least 2 heart attacks and did not realize that that was what they were. I thought I was just having indigestion. My cardiologist said "I am really not surprised, women, especially those who have given birth, often do not realize they are having a heart attack, they work through it and keep going" This is scary! Please make sure you stop and listen to your bodies, I know I will from now on!

You should see all of the new fabric that has been arriving at the shop (yes, I snuck in on Saturday and checked it out)!
