“Creating a Stitch in Time”

Sewing Shop News

Greetings from Sunflower Creations.

Another year is past and here we are in 2011. I don't know about you but time sure flies especially as I get ooolder. According to the weather man we are slated to receive a good old blizzard shortly. While reading a book the other day a man was reminiscing about how a blizzard shuts things down and how things grind to a halt. He left the thought that when this happens it's okay to take a break from all the hurry and scurry of life because everyone else is too as they are forced to stay indoors due to the weather. His thought appealed to me and I sure hope we get one dandy of a blizzard although I do feel sorry for those with livestock. Anyway if we get the blizzard, put on a pot of soup, pull out the sewing machine and sew your cares away. Enjoy the time and beauty while you can because soon it's back to the grindstone.

I need to apologize for not sending another newsletter in December as promised. Lois has been ill and has been absent from the shop for approximately 3 weeks so I have had my hands full. She is slowly on the mend.

BERNINA has changed their Mastery Classes. The new classes are called “My BERNINA Sewing Classes”. I hope to have these up and running by February or sooner. I apologize for the delay but I have been waiting on the guidelines and work books to be published. The Serger Mastery classes are also changing and I will get those going as soon as possible.

Remember we are here to help YOU our customers. Please do not hesitate to stop in. We want your sewing days to be enjoyable and trouble free.
