

Kevin Jepps

Running for Perry City Mayor 2017

Kevin Jepps is a lifelong resident of Box Elder County living in Brigham City most of his life.

He and his wife Jill found Perry's rural setting most favorable, moving here three years ago. They enjoy the 'small town' feel of the area and the sense of community in Perry.

Mr. Jepps feels that being Mayor is a great opportunity to serve the community and focus on preserving these qualities, while giving attention to repairing/maintaining the city infrastructure and preparing for future development.

Mr. Jepps has had a long career in manufacturing management focused on team building, problem solving, conflict resolution, contract negotiation, project management, meeting budget constraints and forecasts with an emphasis on continuous improvement, and cost savings. He has developed successful relationships with vendors and contractors across the US and Canada which have resulted in substantial cost savings and value-added support.

He has been involved in public land use initiatives working with federal, state, county, and city agencies to develop and implement land use and travel plans.

He attended Weber State University.

He and his wife have three children and four grandchildren. He enjoys 4 wheeling, snowshoeing, being with family and life in general.
