

Cristy Simons is a life-time resident of Salem. She and her husband, James, have raised their family and owned and operated their business, Simco Electric, Inc. in Salem City. They have 3 children, 1 daughter-in-law and 2 grandchildren.

Cristy is not a newcomer to city council, serving as a councilmember from 2016-2020. During that time, Cristy had the opportunity to be part of many amazing accomplishments in Salem, including--planning and construction of the Salem Activity Center and Salem City Sewer Plant, property purchase and design of Salem's new Cole Park, created outdoor summer concerts, encouraged and participated in pond clean-up effort; including the installation of the pond fountains, encouraged surplus funds towards a City Library account, assisted in facilitating the relief effort during the 2018 Pole Creek Fire evacuation, assisted in the re-organization of Salem City's Master Plan, and the organization of the Halloween Goosebump Gala and the Salem Senior Citizen program.

Cristy understands that growth is a primary concern in Salem. She has spent a great deal of time studying laws, ordinances, and recognizes that there is more than one way to direct and manage growth, while seeking to maintain small-town values.
