

Jeff Long:

Salem, like many other cities in Utah County, has recently seen unprecedented growth. With the demand for housing in Utah, the strain is beginning to be seen in our communities. Growth in Salem is inevitable and how the city is managed over the next few years will be vital to the long-term health of the city. Having lived in Salem for the last 23 years, I consider this to be my home and I'm deeply committed to helping Salem continue to be the wonderful community that I have come to love.

During my career of 30 years in law enforcement I have devoted myself to maintaining a safe environment for the public. I'm a strong advocate of the Constitution of the United States and believe it's a document ordained by God. I'm proud to have served 23 years in the military where I swore to defend this nation against enemies "foreign and domestic." In 2006 I served in Afghanistan where I was wounded. I was fortunate to come home to my family and the supportive citizens of Salem. I'm invested in Salem, I love the people, and I'm excited to serve!
