Madison News reporter, Tammy Seimears, asked about this being discussed in an executive session. County Counselor Paul Dean clarified that it was discussed due to a complaint from an employee which was found to be unsubstantiated. Before the meeting had begun, Jen Thomsen, Eureka Herald reporter, handed out Kansas Open Meetings Act (KOMA) information to commissioners, and explained that the laws had changed on the verbage they could use, and what can be shared in regards to executive sessions.

Fire Chief Doug Williams told commissioners he had to purchase approximately 12-14 tires last week due to going through pastures; the Fall River 2.5 ton engine blew, but he found a replacement for $1,000; the pump in the pumper truck at Neal needs replaced and will cost $15,000; and the Hamilton tank needs sandblasted and recoated, that project will cost $3,500. He and County Counselor Paul Dean discussed it briefly and Williams said he would write something up for the agreement and send it to Dean for his part needed.

Amanda Cunningham, Interim CEO of Crosswinds and Carol Hind, a representative on the Crosswinds Counseling and Wellness board told commissioners they are interested in forming a focus group in Greenwood County to focus on mental health needs in the county. Hind relayed that she is currently the only board member from Greenwood County and it would be nice to have more, and those interested serving on the focus group could contact them by calling 1-800-279-3645. Cunningham and Hind talked with commissioners and Sheriff Samuels on ways to improve the inmate evaluation process. Commissioner Fox asked if the Sheriff's Department has been using the videoconferencing that had been done from the jail in the past. Samuels indicated it wasn't dependable and they've been having to drive inmates to Emporia to do the consult, and often use another videoconference with an out of state provider. Samuels asked for guidelines on doing patient transports for the hospital. He added he would be willing to provide a deputy to transport the dangerous patients, but not all patients. Cunningham explained that the designation of dangerous was in line with if the patient was being admitted involuntarily, she also added that under certain circumstances their staff could come get a patient and take them to a crisis house in Emporia for up to 72 hours. Cunningham said that the focus group they would like to form could work with issues such as these.

Vic Delpine, Chiller Project Manager and Derek Miller updated the commissioners on the chiller project. Delpine told commissioners that, based on the engineering report from LST Engineers, it had mistakenly identified the need for a 150 kw transformer. Derek Miller, with Kruse Construction, found the error and alerted Delpine, that it actually needed a 300 kw transformer, to handle the load of the new chiller. After making several phone calls Delpine was able to get to the bottom of the issue and make arrangements for the 300 kw transformer to be here this weekend to be installed. Westar will shut the power to the courthouse off Saturday, but there will be three generators set up to take care of the needs of the jail, Sheriff's Office and dispatch. By next Saturday the new chiller should be operational
