

Angie Christensen

Angie Christensen grew up in a small town in Wyoming. Her mother taught her to sew at a very early age and it's been a hobby that has stuck with her ever since. She, her husband and 2 girls moved to Valdez in 2006, ready to settle down and call this quaint little town "home". While living here, they have had 2 sons and 1 more daughter, making this family complete. They enjoy the outdoors by rock/ice climbing, atv-ing, hiking, camping, and anything else that Alaska has to offer.

While living in Valdez, her interest in quilting sparked and SALMONBERRY QUILTING opened the doors in 2012, offering high quality fabrics, custom quilting, and friendly faces (often delicious lemonade from her kiddos in the summers as well). She has quilted hundreds of quilts and continues to enjoy the challenges, freedom, relaxation, and pride that comes with each quilt. She has also expanded her business a few times, which now includes custom embroidery and heat pressing. Quilting is by far her favorite of these services and claims it to be "therapeutic".
