November 2015

I guess most of you are celebrating the cooler weather of fall. My hummingbirds have left until next March. September was unbelievable as far as the number of birds I had. I went through 10 pounds of sugar a week the last of August through mid October. I have never seen so many hummingbirds. It seems so quiet around here now.

I finally finished a quilt I started a couple of years ago. The pattern is not one of mine. It is called Le Jardin by Bunny Hill Designs. I love their patterns. I had trouble finding someone to do custom quilting since we moved, so I did it myself. The picture is from our guild meeting last month in Texas. I'm on the left and my friend Audrey is on the right. Yes, I make the 2 hour drive back to Texas for guild once a month whenever possible. I also go back once a month to play Bunco with friends. Because of my commitments here, I always have to come back the same day or night in the case of our guild meeting. Homesick? Yes, I have the best friends ever!

I actually started a new a new design, but as usual life gets in the way. Oh well, I think things will slow down a little for me over the next couple of months as far as my other job goes.

A New Idea!

I did this small quilt for a person who is in a wheelchair. It is approximately 36" by 40". It could be a little larger, but not too much. I want to make sure the quilt will not get caught up in a wheelchair. This was just a test quilt. I used a Dot Dot Dash Charm Pack given to me by Me & My Sister Designs and used borders from their Hi De Ho line.

What is unusual about this quilt is the purple pocket on the front. Just gives them a place to keep their hands warm. At the same time, it will let them easily eat their meals.

There is also something to go with the quilt. This cute baby doll I found.

Ok, I know some of you are scratching your head. Why?

I have read some articles about residents in nursing homes who may not seem to have a lot of interaction with others.

It seems, if they are given a doll or stuffed animal to love, they seem to almost come alive again. I guess it's just having someone to love. This duo will soon have a new home and I hope it brings a little joy to the person who gets it.

I hope to make a couple of more to take to the local nursing home before Christmas.

Please use this idea! Any pattern will work. It's a great way to use scraps. My next one will have a pieced pocket.
