Creating memories. That's what we do when we stitch a project. We give it to others in hopes that it brings joy. We might keep it for ourselves, and it brings joy to our hearts. We might have something handed down, and when we look at it, touch it, we cherish memories. This holiday season share a memory with someone. We may not all be able to be together this year, so share a thought, story, memory. Write it down, send it in a card, call someone and just check in and say hi and share the laughter. More than ever we need to cherish one another.

I grew up in Bozeman. I lived about 1 1/2 blocks from downtown on Tracy Street. Many ask how long I have sewn? Did my mom teach me? No, it was my older sister. She would buy me kits and teach me to hand sew. The Christmas I turned I think seven, Santa brought me a new Singer Kids sewing machine. (It was made of metal and really sewed well!) I loved that machine! The Singer store was only a block away from me. I used to walk by that store daily! Yes, Santa wrapped up that machine just like the one that was in the store window.

My dad used to get a bonus for Christmas and would get a "family" gift each year. In a household with a wife and three daughters, the gift was usually for the women folk. So the next year my dad brings in our "gift" wrapped so beautifully. I took one look at it and said "that's a sewing machine". He looked at me but did not say anything. That Christmas the gifts were opened and yes, there was a Singer sewing machine under the tree. When asked how I knew it was a sewing machine? My reply, "Santa used the same wrapping paper to wrap up my sewing machine last year!"

I wish I had a memory like I did when I was seven!

Wishing you all a wonderful holiday season full of memories to share!
