

Today at the Cabin!

I find myself a bit scattered this morning as I'm babysitting my 9-month-old granddaughter. Grandkids are the best. They have the ability to reach inside you and wrap their sticky little fingers right around your heart. Lol. This one is crawling all over the place, and pulling herself up on everything and soon.....

So we type a few lines then we go read a book, type a few more lines and go save the dog. Type a few lines and warm up a bottle. Type a few more lines.. and WHEW! No wonder I'm tired at the end of the day. And I used to do this with 3 of them! That's why we have our kids when we're young!!

Baby. Stop. Growing!

10 Layer Cake Quilt Patterns You'll Love Building!

By Blueprint

We love a good layer cake, both the dessert and quilting variety. But in quilting, it's a fairly broad term — it isn't a specific design or method, rather it's any quilt that relies on 10" x 10" cuts of fabric for construction.

On the Homestead...

Rain. It's raining. It rained yesterday. Rain happened the day before and is expected to happen tomorrow too. This does not bode well for me when I'm looking to snatch every last minute on my motorcycle before it's too cold.

It's also hard to get outside to get winter cleanup started. You know, hoses all rolled up and put away in the barn, all of the t-posts stashed in the barn, lawn chairs and empty pots put away, pool winterized.... All of the "summer stuff" that occupies the yard, fire pit, decks and everywhere else.

So as soon as the rain stops (rumor has it that Friday might be nice...) it may have to be a motorcycle day.

And... I do have a few pumpkins in the garden that are showing promise, they may graduate into jack-o-lanterns!

This week's puzzle!
