Fabric as an Art Medium - OURstory, HERstory and Fly Me to the Moon

Today Susanne Miller Jones shared stories of the quilts in her three books with us. This was our first in-store event and it was a great success.

We heard about Susanne's journey and how she came to curate these three collections and author OURstory Quilts: Human Rights Stories in Fabric; HERstory Quilts: A Celebration of Strong Women; and Fly Me to the Moon: An Art Quilt

Journey. We saw quilts from each of the books and learned about different techniques and styles and were able to see these masterpieces up close. Susanne talked about fabric selection and how art quilters see values and textures differently in their fabric choices than others who might be using the same fabric in more traditional ways. The attendees all went on a quick scavenger hunt around the store to identify and find five fat quarters that could represent elements in a landscape art quilt. We came back together and talked about the different choices that each of us made. We believe Susanne just created what will be a whole group of new art quilters.

Susanne signed her books for us and opened many eyes to a new method of using fabric. We thank Susanne for her time and willingness to share her journey. She encouraged us all to explore and be creative.

We have a number of signed books available for purchase. These will make great Christmas presents.

Some pictures from today's event. More are available on our facebook page.
