Textile recycling company Reju offers a chemical solution to textile waste

Reju, a polyester recycling company, offers a unique alternative: It repurposes polyester, a synthetic material made from petroleum that can take up to 200 years to disintegrate, by breaking it down to its molecular components and then rebuilding it into a stronger, better-quality fiber, ready to be made into completely new garments. One material scientist told Morning Brew that Reju's method is the "holy grail" of the circular economy, and an industry expert said the company is proof that investors are ready to support sustainable textile innovation to tackle the global waste crisis.

embroidered by hand. What craftsmanship!

Maureen C had her first long arm rental and finished up her charming boot quilt.

This backpack was made by Susan K on her Janome TM30. Talk about small but mighty! Pattern by Annie's.

This classic blouse includes a little twist! In addition to the elegant, deep-but-not-revealing V neck, the classic shirt-tail hem, and the center-back pleat, this pattern includes two sleeve options: a 3/4-length lantern sleeve and a gentle 3/4-length bell sleeve. This pattern includes cup sizes to help you get a great fit.

Lorraine chose to use a neck facing instead of a bound neckline to dress up the blouse a bit. She'll be happy to teach you to do this as well!
